

Level 4 Diploma - FACT SHEET

ABMA Education is an awarding organisation based in the UK that is recognised by Ofqual, as well as many government accreditation bodies worldwide. It was established in the late 1990's in London with the aim to provide qualifications in a number of sectors for learners looking to turn their career aspirations into job success.

ABMA Education's approach to learning is different, as they work tirelessly to bridge the gap between education and employment by working closely with employers, education experts and their recognised centres to include the most relevant content and up to date skills in their qualifications. It's not just what you learn, but how you learn, that puts ABMA Education learners at the forefront of industry.

Aims

The main aims of the ABMA qualifications in Public Health Management (PHM) are to:

- Prepare specially trained individuals with the capacity to encourage more healthy practices and protect against the constant threats to public health, from increasingly difficult and complex issues.
- Empower individuals to respond effectively and professionally to issues that would otherwise impact hugely on communities and regions without their involvement.
- Enable students to make an immediate contribution in employment in the Public Health sector.
- Provide students with flexibility, knowledge, skills, understanding and motivation as a basis for progression to graduate and postgraduate studies.
- Develop a range of skills and techniques, personal qualities and attitudes essential for successful performance in working life.

Progression

Upon successful completion of the PHM Level 4 Diploma, students can progress to the PHM Level 5 Diploma which is 1 year in duration. The ABMA Diplomas are standalone or a stepping stone to our BSc (Hons) OSHE top-up, then to our MSc SHE/OH or our MBA via the Public Health stream.
